Subject: Rollabind final notice.

And again another week has passed and still no response as usual.

Have discussed with the legal department and are now pretty well assured that you have absolutely no intention to ship the goods. Also even if you were to ship the goods at this late a date, we can not trust that you would ever ship any follow up goods in either good faith or in a timely fashion. And if would NOT be prudent to prepay any further orders based on our experience. When we discussed your deliveries in December of '07, I had noted that a number of websites had indicated that your deliveries were unreliable, you stated that this was not true. We are now in the beginning of May and the memos I have on file that state you have the material in stock and just need to assemble it - appears to be blatant lies.

I have instructed counsel to contact a Legal firm in Florida and to commence action against Rollabind. We will be looking for all of our initial money returned, any and all monies spent on marketing campaigns as well as interest and punitive damages to the full extent of the law possible. We have spent a lot of time and money in our market strategy planning and packaging on this product including the building of the custom website. We have detailed all communication and delays by Rollabind and feel that they have far exceeded breach of contract as the goods were paid for in advance.

As you have taken these measures of non-fulfillment .. it is determined that you have cancelled our relationship and we now have grounds for punitive damages.

I remain,

S.J. (Hans) de Wit
